

THE PRESENTERS:

Kim English is the director of research for the Colorado Division of Criminal Justice, the criminal justice state planning agency, where she manages a staff of six professional researchers engaged in state and federally funded research activities. Ms. English has been the principal investigator on a number of studies funded by the National Institute of Justice, including two national surveys of probation and parole management practices pertaining to adult sexual offenders. An important study that is currently underway is the identification and documentation of promising practices for the prevention and intervention of sexual assault in jails and juvenile facilities nationwide. Ms. English serves on the ethics committee of the American Society of Criminology, is an associate editor of the Journal of Offender Rehabilitation and Polygraph. She is the recipient of recognition awards from the American Polygraph Association, the Justice Research and Statistics Association, and the Bureau of Justice Assistance.

Peggy Heil is a licensed clinical social worker. For nineteen years, she developed and directed the Sex Offender Treatment and Monitoring Program at the Colorado Department of Corrections. Currently, she works in the Office of Research and Statistics at the Colorado Division of Criminal Justice. She also has a private practice and provides training and consultation in sex offender treatment and management. In addition, she is the mountain region representative on the Association for the Treatment of Sexual Abusers' Executive Board, a therapist representative on the Colorado Sex Offender Management Board, and a member of the Executive Board of the Colorado Coalition Against Sexual Assault. She has been a principle investigator in a number of sex offender studies and has authored professional articles and book chapters related to sex offenders.
